HOME LEAVE

1. The Overseas Differentials and Allowances Act, approved 6 September 1960, provided among other things for the accrual of home leave, in addition to the present annual leave, for those employees assigned PCS in foreign countries or in territories or possessions of the United States. This leave does not accrue for employees stationed in Alaska or Hawaii. Changes in Regulation [redacted] detailing policies and procedures of the new leave, will be made as soon as possible. In the meantime, this notice is being issued to provide employees with general information about the effect of the act and present thinking about its administration within the Agency.

2. The statute allows a maximum rate of accrual of 15 days per year. It is now planned that the maximum rate will be applied in the Agency. Accrual of home leave will ordinarily commence on the first day of the first pay period after 6 September 1960, and home leave ordinarily may only be granted after two years' continuous service overseas after that date. home leave and in the computation of the required two years' service abroad. In addition, the requirement that an employee have sufficient annual leave to carry him in a pay status for 30 calendar days has been abolished as a condition to the issuance of home leave travel orders. However, home leave travel plans should provide for a minimum period of two weeks in the United States or its territories or possessions.
